Distance.

How many leagues of weary land and sea
Can place thy spirit far apart from mine?
Can lure from distance dim some silent sign
To set my soul enfranchised far from thee—
Afar from eyes that never leave me free,
From tones that stir my heart like mounting wine,
From presence thralling as some dream divine?
Alas! by night and day all stay with me.

There is no distance—not for those who know
The silent countersign that makes them one,
Whose thoughts are messengers that burn and glow,
With love's fleet messages the winds outrun.
Go, sail the seas! Go, seek the rising sun!
Beyond my constant heart thou canst not go.

On Account of a Card.

"I shall never forget my experience in a mountain district of Arkansaw," said Capt. Mellvine, when the conversation had turned upon adventure. "There are many pleasant occurrences that we forget, but an affair of horror remains with us. The memory of a pleasant dream soon passes away, but the recollection of a nightmare becomes a mental landmark. Some time ago I was instructed by my employers to repair at once to the White Oak mountains and buy all the cattle that a reasonable sum of money would induce to leave the rugged trails. I boarded a railway train, and was soon rushing toward my destination. Sociability is a prominent feature of my nature, which I suppose is an heirloom left by long experience as newspaper reporter; and I had not been long on the train until I had formed the acquaintance of several gentlemen, among them a United States deputy marshal, who gave me his card with an evident air of pride in being connected with so prominent an institution as our government. At a small station, a long-haired man, a genuine native of Arkansaw, I surmised, boarded the train and took a seat opposite me. I was desirous of hearing him talk in his quaint dialect, and moved over, addressed him and handed him my card. He looked at the card significantly and carefully placed it in an old black pocket-book. He eyed me nervously for a moment and then asked:

"'Whar mout yer be goin'?'

"'White Oak mountains,' I replied, 'I get off at Patsey station.'

"He looked at me with an earnestness, an uneasiness of gaze that I could not understand, and said:

"'I reckin you'll find it rite pleasant up thar. Best lot o' fellers yer ever seed, an' they ain't afeerd, lemme tell you.'

"I could not divine why their physical courage should in the least add to the pleasure of my visit, but supposing the remark grew out of his admiration for men who are not 'afeerd,' and that such information would lighten, in charming anticipation, the fatigues of the journey, I did not ask him to explain. He did not seem to 'cotton' to me, as the planters sometimes say in expressing predilection, and he left his seat and stood near the door. I approached him again, feeling more than ever an interest in him, and asked him if he had ever been among the White Oak mountains.

"'Have I got fingers and toes?' he replied.

"'I can answer assuredly concerning your fingers, and can speculate with chances in my favor in regard to your toes,' I said in facetious attempt.

"'Wall, then, I've been thar.'

"'Many cattle in that country?'

"'Yes, an' yer'll find some of them putty hard to han'le, lemme tell yer.'

"'My friend, I must confess that you puzzle me. I have asked you several very civil questions, expecting civil answers, but you are so evasive that I can get no satisfaction.'

"'Yer're gone to school, hain't yer?'

"'Yes.'

"'Talk Latin, I reckin'.'

"'My knowledge of Latin is limited.'

"'It's what they call a dead talk, ain't it?'

"Yes, it is a dead language.

"'Then yer mout need it ar'ter a while.'

"'I don't understand you. Your meaning is as dead to me as the language in question is to the unlettered world.'

"'So much the worse for yer. I reckin' yer air sorter proud o' yer learnin' an' it may be all right to fling out yer book business at every man yer see, but it don't speak o' very soun' sense, lemme tell yer. In my country when a man gets to spoutin' like yer've been doin', we put him down as a grinnel an' don't have nothin' more to do with him.'

"By this time the train was slacking up at a station. The brakeman shouted 'Patsey,' and in a moment more I was standing on the platform. The next business to be transacted was to hire a horse, which I did after considerable trouble. Just as I mounted and started across the rugged country, I saw my long-haired acquaintance on a mule, riding rapidly in the direction I was to take. I called to him, but he made no reply.

"My instructions were to call on a gentleman named Harvey. I learned that he lived about fifteen miles from the station, and when night came on I had considerable trouble in pursuing the right course. Hurrying clouds obscured the moon, and I could only get an occasional glimpse of the narrow and deflecting road. Suddenly my horse stopped and snorted. I urged him, but he would not proceed. I dismounted to ascertain the cause of his fright, when I was seized, and, despite resistance, bound and gagged. There seemed to be quite a number in the party of captors, for while bound to a horse and hurried along, I heard numerous suppressed voices. We must have travelled several miles over a country rough with ravines and almost precipitous with hillsides. When we stopped I was rudely lifted from the horse and taken inside a log house built so close to the mountain side that an immense rock formed a side wall of the structure. I was placed upon a bench and my hands were untied. I saw around me ten or twelve rough-looking men, heavily armed. They were fierce in action and determined in expression. I had pleaded with them, ere they put the gag in my mouth, but now they had restored to me the use of articulation, I sat mute and almost stupefied. At every turn I saw great copper vessels, and off to the right, where my eyes inadvertently wandered, I saw a rude corn mill and a pile of corn.

"'So you've come out here to take us to the penitentiary, eh?' said a large, grizzly-bearded man, stepping in front of me.

"'No,' I replied. I never heard of you before. I came to this country to buy mountain cattle.'

"'An' I reckin you've foun' more of 'em than you can buy.'

"'I don't understand you. I don't know why I was brought here. I never harmed any of you, and why you should inflict punishment on me is something I don't understand.'

"'Oh, he's powerful innocent,' exclaimed a fellow, who looked at me with an expression of blood-thirsty revenge. 'He don't know what we mean now because he ain't got his crowd with him.'

"'That's the way he's tryin' to work it,' exclaimed a man who leaned against one of the copper vessels, 'but turn him a lose an' he'd show us.'

"'Gentlemen, you—'

"'Gentlemen,' repeated a score of voices. 'Did you hear that? He's gittin' powerful meek.'

"'Young feller,' said the grizzly bearded patriarch, 'we're goin' to put a mighty tellin' lesson afore your eyes We're citizens of this here Amerikin gover'ment, and don't want to be pestered in the exercise of our natr'l rights. Our forefathers fit an' bled fur the 'stablishment of this Newnited States, an' we think we've got a right to make whiskey when an' whar we please.'

"'Now you're talkin'; put it to him.' chimed the chorus.

"'You may be a brave man,' continued the patriarch, 'an' may be dischargin' your duty, but it's our duty to see that you don't. We could have killed you easy enough without puttin' ourselves to the trouble of fetchin' you here, but we wanted to furnish an example to a young feller that turned traitor. We want to hang you rite afore his eyes an' then hang him.'

"A groan arrested my attention, and looking around, I saw a young man bound hand and foot, stretched upon the floor.

"'That young chap,' continued the grizzly leader, 'went down to Little Rock some time ago, an' as we found out by your raid, turned traitor on us. Ef it hadn't been for him you wouldn't now be so close to whar the revelations of the gospel ends an' whar the real work of eternal punishment begins. Hold the young feller up an' let the sinners look at each other.'

"'Gentlemen, I never saw the young fellow before, I declare. There must be some mistake here. What do you think my business is, anyhow? For God's sake do not act until you know what you are doing! Heaven knows I did not come here to harm anyone.'

"'That talk mout amount to a good deal afore a judge an' jury, but afore us it only amounts to what it's worth.'

"'What am I charged with. Give me a chance to defend myself.'

"'It wan't expected that you'd want a chance. A man that is so bold as to come rite out as you have done oughter know that if he's tuck thar ain't no chance fur him. Fetch the rope, Josiah!

The young man addressed immediately appeared with the rope. I begged and prayed, but they slipped a noose over my neck, and, throwing the rope over something above, tightened it.

"'Before you murder me,' I gasped, tell me what I've done.'

"'You are a deputy United States marshal on the hunt of distillers,' replied grizzly beard.

"'I am not. I am a cattle buyer. No one can prove that I am a deputy marshal.'

"'I reckin' I kin,' replied a voice and before me stood the long-haired man I had met on the train.

"'I did not tell you that I was deputy marshal!'

"'No, but yer give me yer ticket,' and he produced a card bearing the name and address of 'J. M. Pelter, United States Deputy Marshal.'

"Then I realized how the mistake had occurred. The deputy marshal had given me his card, and when I introduced myself to the long-haired man, I had, without noticing it, given it to him. I made an elaborate explanation, and in proof, told them to search my pockets, where they would find several cards bearing different names, but would find at least fifty bearing one name, which was my own They did so, and took the rope from my neck, and also liberated the young man who they thought had turned informer.

"I was soon liberated and allowed to mount my horse. The grizzly man gave me instructions in regard to the road to Harvey's, and bade me good-night in a spirit of friendship. When I had gone about fifty yards some one called to me to stop. I did not know whether to fly or obey, but knowing that the distillers could, by their knowledge of the country, soon head me off, I stopped. Pretty soon old grizzly appeared.

"'Here,' he said, handing me a bottle, 'take the moonshine along with you. It's the best, an' along towards the turn of the night you'll find it mighty strengthenin'. Don't say anything about our pleasant meetin' fur you mout be sorry fur it. Good bye.'"

An Incident of the Crimea.

A formidable mine had been dug and loaded under the Malakoff tower. If General MacMahon had not chanced to discover in the barrack one wire leading from a well-concealed voltaic-pile to a large quantity of powder under it, and another connecting it with the powder magazine, the whole victorious force might have been blown into the air after having gained possession of the fort. The wires were cut, but the powder magazine could not be found. Some of the French soldiers were setting fire to the empty gabions which had been thrust into the small windows of the bomb-proof cellar under the tower, in order to barricade it One of the gabions appeared to be moving. A French officer called out that if any one was there who could speak French he might come out without fear. The gabion was pushed through the window, and a very young Russian officer crept out. He was assured that he and any others surrendering as prisoners of war would be well treated. After saying a few words in Russian at the window he was joined by four officers and 200 common soldiers. They begged, through him, to be taken away at once. This request suggested some knowledge of an impending explosion. The young officer was therefore ordered to point out the position of the powder magazine. The lad made no answer. A French subaltern said in a loud voice to the commanding officer that the Russian ought to be shot if he refused to obey the order given to save so many lives. The youth kept silence, with a haughty glance of indignation at the subaltern, apparently for supposing that he would betray a secret under a threat. The French chief formed a platoon to shoot him and he turned to face his executioners. An old Russian major, who seemed to understand French, ran forward, took the commandant by the hand, drew him to a heap of earth, and pointed downward. The earth was quickly shoveled away, and barrels containing 88,000 tons of gunpowder were discovered. A strong French guard was placed over them. The young Russian officer was told to go with the other prisoners. He gave a military salute and kissed the old Russian major's hand. "Do not blame him for showing you the powder," he said in French to the commandant, with a trembling voice and tears in his eyes. "He is my father."

Would Just About Suit.

A pretentious person said to the leading man of a village, "How would a lecture by me on Mount Vesuvius suit the inhabitants of your village?" "Very well, sir; very well indeed," he answered; a lecture by you on Mount Vesuvius would suit them a great deal better than a lecture by you in this village."

TRIUMPHS OF OLD AGE.

What the Octogenarians, De Lesseps and Ericsson Have Accomplished.

Two notable examples are now before the public, of men whose sinews have waxed not old, whose eyes are not dimmed and whose natural force is not abated by the eighty years which they have lived in the world.

One is DeLesseps, the famous canal builder, whose mental force, physical strength and moral audacity, might well be the envy of men half his years. Just emerging from his conflict with the English commander and the khedive during the Egyptian war, when alone he defended the neutrality of the Suez canal, he has entered into a contract with the English government to build another without yielding a single claim or demand which he made when the khedive threatened him with English vengeance, nor, regardless of international consequences, taking a backward step. In the meanwhile he is pushing forward the Panama canal project, which is to the Suez canal what an Alpine tunnel is to a country ditch, obtaining money, ignoring protests and objections, and bringing to its support an indomitable will and a self- assertion, possessed only by the master-minds of war and statesmanship. Although eighty-one years of age he is the husband of a comparatively young wife and the father of eleven children, the youngest of whom is only a few weeks old. His public projects are as far reaching as if he were but fifty; his physical vigor equal to his mental force. The combination at such an age is very rare.

Another instance is the inventor, Ericsson, of the same age as De Lesseps, and in all but his years a young man yet. It is more than twenty years since his invention, the Monitor, arrived in Hampton Roads just in time to prevent the United States forces from being driven from the Virginia peninsula. Since that time, naval warfare has been revolutionized again. The low, creeping iron-clad is a thing of the past, unless against an immense armament and the steel-covered fleets of the modern navy. To meet this formidable enemy Ericsson has dived beneath the water, and his torpedo boat, the Destroyer, is expected to be "the cheap defense of nations" against the monsters which all first-class governments now own to keep one another in order. His solar engine, destined to store up and use the sun's rays in tropic latitudes for the purposes of irrigation, is still on his hands; but of its success little doubt is expressed. At any rate, his fore-score years seem to find him as hopeful, active, vigorous and industrious as at any period of his life.

Such lives are exceptional, but not solitary instances. Dandolo, Doge of Venice, won some of his greatest naval victories at eighty, and stormed and captured Constantinople at the age of ninety; Benjamin Franklin was as bright, inventive and active in his seventy-fifth year as in his fiftieth; Goethe was nearly eighty when he wrote the second part of "Faust;" both Bacon and Newton were far advanced in years when they made some of their most notable discoveries. But these are marvels in human history, and well entitled to provoke attention and curiosity. If a man survives his sixtieth year, he is generally well content, even if active and strong, to live upon his past fame and achievements rather than to undertake new enterprises or plan new projects.

The Value of Manner.

We have heard it said that you can do everything, however unpleasant it may be to those around you, if you only do it in the right way; and the instance given to prove the truth of this assertion is taken from humble life. A cat walks daintily into a room on a cold winter's day, and with a benign glance at the company and a melodious purring sound she walks leisurely round, selects for herself the warmest place in the room—perhaps the only warm place, right in front of the fire—curls herself up and goes serenely to sleep, secure that no one will be so unreasonable as to question her right to sleep wherever inclination prompts her to sleep. No one calls it selfish, no one is annoyed, because she has done it so prettily and gracefully. Indeed, every one experiences an access of warmth and comfort in themselves, from beholding pussy's blissful repose. Now, imagine the same thing done in a different way, and by a less self-possessed individual. If it were done hurriedly, or noisily, or clumsily, or diffidently even, or in any way obtrusively, what a storm of indignation it would excite in the bosoms of all beholders? How thoughtless, how inconsiderate, how selfish! No, it must be done as the cat does it, without a sound or a gesture to provoke criticism, or it must not be done at all.

EYES THAT SEE NOT.

Being of the Kind That are Exported to Fill Vacancies.—Artificial Optics.

"We sell from 100 to 150 artificial eyes a year," says a Philadelphia optician, "and the demand seems to grow greater every year. There is a very large nominal profit on these goods, for they sell at $10 to $15 each, according to grade; but when you consider the trouble and annoyance the fitting involves and the time it consumes, you can easily see that they are well worth the price charged. We never have a customer that is satisfied with his new eye at the first 'trying on'. Within a day or two he comes back and claims that the color is a shade lighter or a shade darker than the good eye, or that they don't match in some other way. There is only one thing for it. We must go over our whole stock until the eye is matched, and our time and trouble must count for something. We have a number of steady customers, who always buy their eyes of us, and bring them to us to be cleaned and repaired."

"Where do you get artificial eyes?"

"They are made at Stutzbach, in the Thuringian forest, in Germany, and the works employ a large force of skilled workmen. It is wonderful how closely they imitate the human organ of sight. I don't believe there is an eye that cannot be almost perfectly matched."

"Do artificial eyes wear out."

"Oh, yes, an eye wears out in about two years. The salt and other alkaline substances in the tear duct eventually eat off the polish and the inner surface becomes rough, and requires to be repolished."

"We have some customers—nervous and excitable people—who are constantly changing their eyes, and not at all to the betterment of their appearance. Others provide themselves with several eyes, and use them alternately. Their wearers must take them out at night and keep them in clean water, for the secretions of the eye would otherwise gather upon them. Moreover the muscles that keep them in place, require frequent rests."

"What, are the eyes capable of movement?"

"One of the great prerequisites in the removal of an eye, when it becomes necessary, is to leave the surrounding muscles intact. This is generally done by experienced oculists, but sometimes cases come to us in which the muscles have been remorselessly destroyed, and then we find it almost impossible to make the artificial substitute look natural. I know a pretty young lady whose glass eye will stare stolidly and solemnly at you, as if the owner were inwardly accusing you of some grave offense' while her natural eye is twinkling merrily at the joke that she is listening to or at something funny that she sees. Once, when she was looking into her pocket-book for some change with her good eye, that terrible artificial eye twisted itself around in my direction and glared at me with a malevolence that frightened me. It was only then that I discovered that it was a glass eye, for it was very well matched. When I subsequently examined the young lady's case I found that nothing could be done for her. She must go through life subject to all kinds of misunderstandings, just because a surgeon who didn't understand his business, had bungled over the operation on her eye. I know, also, an old gentleman, whose right eye beams with intelligence and amiability, while his left glares gloomily forth with an air of utter disgust and dissatisfaction with the world.

The First Prayer in Colorado.

Father Dyer, a Methodist minister, was the pioneer preacher in Colorado. He brought prayer over in a wheelbarrow before any of the Pullman sleeper preachers arrrived. It is related of Father Dyer that when he first landed in what is now Denver he saw before him a large tent, and to that, supposing a camp meeting was in progress, he wended his way. To his astonishment he found—not a camp meeting, but a very extensive series of games, such as faro, poker, keno and the like, going forward. He remained about the tent for forty eight hours, looking very intently upon the progress of the games. At the end of that period he stepped upon a table and said, in a voice loud enough to be heard all about him: "Boys, I have looked at your game now for the past eight and forty hours. Now, I ask you to give some attention to mine. Let us pray." They had not known before that the solemn-looking man was a minister, but at the invitation hats were taken off, chips were dropped, and all bowed their heads in prayer, with Father Dyer leading. And that was the first public prayer uttered in the Pike's Peak country. After the prayer had been concluded the games were resumed

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Do.

Do the best you can at all times, and that is saying a good deal. Do your work, as a general thing, before you play. Do rest when you are tired, if you possibly can. Do sleep at night rather than in the daytime. Do keep your feet dry and warm, and your head cool. Do live cheerful and happy as possible, and make all those about you as much as in you lieth, and in order to do this keep healthy, busy and active—soul and body.

The Monkey and the Sugar.

A recent English writer gives the following illustration of the sagacity of animals, which will interest our young readers, if not their elders as well:

I remember once, in India, giving a tame monkey a lump of sugar inside a corked bottle. The monkey was of an inquiring mind, and it nearly killed it. Sometime, in an impulse of disgust, it would throw the bottle away, out of its own reach, and then be distracted until it was given back to it. At others, it would sit with a countenance of the most intense dejection, contemplating the bottled sugar, and then, as if pulling itself together for another effort at solution, would sternly take up the problem afresh, and gaze into it.

It would tilt it up one way, and try to drink the sugar out of the neck, and then, suddenly reversing it, try to catch it as it fell out at the bottom.

Under the impression that it could capture it by a surprise, it kept rasping its teeth against the glass in futile bites, and warming to the pursuit of the revolving lamp, used to tie itself into regular knots round the bottle.

Nothing availed, however, until one day a light was shed upon the problem by a jar of olives falling from the table with a crash, and the fruit rolling about in all directions. His monkeyship contemplated the catastrophe, and reasoned upon it with the intelligence of a Humboldt.

Lifting the bottle high in its paws, he brought it down upon the floor with a tremendous noise, smashing the glass into fragments, after which he calmly transferred the sugar to his mouth, and munched it with great satisfaction.

Bravo, Stick!

One day in autumn a fine flower bulb was planted some five or six inches deep in the rich brown ground, and a stick that the gardener had found lying in the field just outside of the garden gate was stuck near it.

"Well," said the stick, in a dry little voice, as soon as the gardener had gone, "I never thought to be brought into this beautiful garden, at which I have been peeping through the fence for a month or more. I wonder if I am to live here always? I hope so."

"If you do live here always," cried the flower bulb from her snug resting-place, "I don't see what good it will do you. You're only a stick, and a stick you'll remain. Now I—and, by-the-bye, if it hadn't been for me you'd have staid in the field, for you were wanted only to mark the place where I am planted—I shall greet the spring with handsome green leaves and the summer with lovely blossoms."

Now it happened, before the winter was over, a hungry mole burrowed its way into the garden, and sniffing about in search of something to eat, found all the roots and bulbs too bitter for its taste with the exception of one—the very one that had spoken so boastingly to the stick—and that it speedily devoured. And so when spring arrived nothing came from the spot where that bulb had been placed to greet her.

But, lo and behold, the stick had taken root, and was covered with the prettiest tiny green leaves. The gardener, coming that way, looked at it with wonder. "Why, that's the stick I picked up outside last fall," said he. "I'll let it stay there, and see what it comes to." And it came to a sturdy treelet, covered before the summer passed away with fragrant pale pink flowers. Some chrysanthemums, who had heard the conversation between the bulb and the stick when they paid their autumn visit, cried, "Bravo, stick! you have done well, but how did you do it?"

"Oh, I tried so hard!" said the treelet, in a mellow little voice; "and I never lost heart, no matter how cold the winter wind and snow. But I'm sorry the mole ate the poor flower bulb."—Harper's Young People.

In the English navy only lime juice is used, and scurvy is practically unknown. In the merchant marine service lemon juice is chiefly used, because it is cheaper, and cases of scurvy are frequent. The trouble is that lemon juice soon becomes inert and useless by fermentation.

The Woods in Autumn.

I.

Flashes of gold that fleck the sober gray,
Dark ruddy tints that crimson in the light;
Soft streaks of silver glimmering pearly white,
Amid the russet browns half hid away;
Pure green of spring that lingers while it may;
Patches of ivy-foliage dark as night;
Rich purple shades that peep out from the hights:

II.

Such crown with glory the September day,
Oh, autumn woods! I lie beside the stream
That winds you round about so lovingly,
And rapt in sense of wondrous beauty, see
How vain must be ambition's lofty dream
To rival tints like yours, or dare to trace
Your perfect harmony, your perfect grace.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

An old landmark—"For Sale."

The heated term—"You're a liar!"

The first rifle team—the pickpockets.

A man who breaks his word—the stutterer.

Ice-cream may taste good but it's cold comfort after all.

Rulers sway the people, but the school-master sways the rulers.

The meanest man out is one who knows who will be next president but will not tell..

Henry Bergh opposes angling because it not only lacerates the fish, but encourages lying.

Out in Illinois if a man washes his face twice a day and wears a collar, they call him a dude.

The man who drinks nothing but cistern water is the one who leaves well enough alone.

Adam was not a polygamist, although in his day he married all the women in the world.

If you hear a man say that there is very little gambling going on at present you can safely infer that he knows no better.

Young Muggins recently became a party to a very interesting sleight-of-hand performance. His girl gave him the mitten.

Another nihilistic plot has been unearthed in Russia. When the czar entered the breakfast room the other day he found two American cucumbers and a melon right on his plate.

"Were you in the late war?" asked a veteran of a badly demoralized citizen who came hobbling down the street on a crutch. "I don't know how late you mean," was the sad reply; "she gave me this one last night before tea."

Limit of Human Swimming Speed.

The utmost limit of human swimming speed is two miles in one hour, and nine miles has never been done in five hours. Yet in the face of these facts, we are told that a young woman swam, June 30, eighteen miles in less than five hours, the truth being that she swam six or seven miles and drifted the remainder of the distance. We also learn that a man swam in the Hudson twenty miles in six hours; and also read of two gentlemen, who, only a few days ago, swam five miles in one hour and ten minutes. A simple illustration will reduce these erroneous reports to their fundamental absurdity. Suppose that three ordinary swimmers be thrown into the East river, foot of Eighty-third street, New York, at the middle of ebb tide. Let the first swim down toward the Battery, and in about fifteen minutes he will pass the Blackwell island hospital, having, according to the new style of report, swum a mile and a half in fifteen minutes. Let the second man lie on his back and float, without moving hand or foot. In about twenty-five minutes he will also pass the hospital, without swimming a stroke. Let the third man swim up stream toward Harlem, and in about forty-five minutes he will find himself drifting, feet first, down by the hospital. He could not have swum there, for he swam all the time in the other direction. A little study of these examples would tend to increase the accuracy and intelligibility of swimming reports.

Taming a Wolf.

At a recent meeting of the anthropological society of France, at which the supposed descent of the dog from the wolf was discussed, M. Harbourdin said that he had brought up a wolf that was as gentle as a lamb. It was also remarkably intelligent, and could open the doors by turning the handles. When it heard a clock strike it would stand on its hind legs and move the hands round with its paws. It was fond of perfumes, and lived on the best of terms with poultry and other animals, but had a great aversion to cats. M. de Mortillet, on the other hand, said that he had been endeavoring in vain to tame wolves. He found them gentle enough so long as they were young, but they became savage at the adult age.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

FOR AUDITOR GENERAL,
CAT. ROBERT TAGGART,
OF WARREN COUNTY.

FOR STATE TREASURER.
HON. JOSEPH POWELL,
OF BRADFORD COUNTY.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY,
W. C. Heinle,
OF BELLEFONTE.
FOR ASSOCIATE JUDGE,
Dr. J. R. Smith,
OF FERGUSON TOWNSHIP.
FOR COUNTY SURVEYOR,
Ellis L. Orvis,
OF BELLEFONTE.

DR. J. P. SMITH, the Democratic nominee for Associate Judge, was appointed to that office, vice Judge Runkle, deceased, by Gov. Pattison and confirmed by the senate the other Tuesday. He took his official seat on the same day. Judge Smith carries his new honors with dignity and ease and is well spoken of by our neighbors who attended court last week.

The Greenbackers of the state actually went to the trouble to hold a sort of state convention at Williamsport on the 30th ultimo. T. P. Rynder, of Altoona, and A. T. Marsh, of Erie, were nominated for Auditor General and state treasurer. The resolutions passed are entirely 'too tedious to mention."

Judge Orvis was handsomely banqueted by the Huntingdon bar the other week, on the occasion of taking his seat there as President Judge of the 49th Judicial District, composed of Centre and Huntingdon counties.

WE have only space to state that the Democratic county meeting in Bellefonte, on Tuesday evening of court week, was a big affair. The Court House was crowded, and not a few republicans were in the audience, anxious to hear our noble young chairman, Mr. Hensel, and Ex-Gov. Curtin. Both speeches are highly spoken of by all who heard them. The speech of Mr. Hensel, who appeared before a Centre county audience for the first time, was especially able, comprehensive and strong.

D. F. Fortney and W. C. Heinle, Esqs, also made speeches, and the meeting was kept up with much enthusiasm until a late hour.

Thus the campaign opened very auspiciously in Old Centre.

He Has Nothing to Say.

Representative Niles, the Republican candidate for Auditor General, was a member of the legislature in 1881, and is also a member of the present house.

Then Mr. Niles had a very clear conception of his constitutional duty as regards apportionment. In a speech delivered by him at that time he said: "We have for months been neglecting our constitutional obligation to pass an apportionment bill which the constitution declares shall be passed."

Now Mr. Niles has not one word to say against the revolutionary course of his confederates in the senate, although he is the chosen candidate of his party for a high and responsible office. He is silent, dumb as an oyster. No sense of "constitutional obligation" now impels him to speak in favor of justice and right. The bosses nominated him, they own him, and he must do their bidding; and this is why he stifles conviction and dodges plain duty. But the people will bring up his cowardly course in judgment against him on election day. They will not be so silent about the matter as Mr. Niles is.

SINCE Sept. 1, the headquarters of the Democratic state committee for the present campaign are permanently located in rooms No 7 and 9, at the Girard house, Philadelphia, the same as were occupied last year and by Col. McClure in the Curtin—Lincoln campaign of 1860. The clerical work of the committee has been vigorously prosecuted since the opening of the year and is much further on than at the corresponding stage of last year's campaign. The work of the organization will be somewhat simplified this year by reason of the fact that there is no election for nor complications over members of the Legislature and congressmen. The efforts of the state committee will be concentrated upon getting out the full Democratic vote.

CHARLES S. WOLFE, it seems, learned to know Senator John Stewart pretty thoroughly during the contest for United States senator in 1881. In his great speech in Philadelphia, on October 3, 1881, Mr. Wolfe distinctly intimated that Senator Stewart aided in bringing about the surrender of the bosses in the republican state convention of that year which nominated General Baily for state treasurer. In view of what Mr. Wolfe then said of Senator Stewart it is not a matter of wonder that he is now cheek by jowl with the bosses. After he stumps for Arthur the next year he will be a fit candidate for the succession to Senator Cameron.

THERE is no longer any doubt that the country is becoming thoroughly alarmed at the spread of intemperance and consequent increase of crime. Take Chicago alone. Ten days ago a man on the west side came home drunk, and whipped his wife to death, in the sight of her child. The saloon did it. The next day a drunken man murdered another in a saloon in the same neighborhood. Liquor did it. Last week two desperados met in a saloon and fought to the death of one and wounding of the other with revolvers. Whiskey did it. More than three-fourths of all crime is traceable directly to the saloons.—Chicago Advance.

CHAIRMAN HENSEL, of the Democratic state committee, takes a hopeful view of Democratic prospects in the state. He says that within four weeks after the state convention there has been more work done than in the eight weeks succeeding the convention last year; that the work has been untiring, energetic and thorough, and that there is a Democratic organization in every election precinct. Mr. Hensel believes there will be a larger vote polled this year than is ordinarily expected in an off year, and he is confident of the success of the Democratic ticket.

AT HARRISBURG the situation is still the same it has been these many weeks. The subject is becoming stale, monotonous—tiresome and even disgusting to write about. The House from time to time hits upon some new or at least different plan to effect some kind of apportionments, but the Senate, under the leadership and party lash of bold, bad men like Cooper, Reyburn, the hypocrite Stewart and others, defeat every project brought up to bring about that desirable end. They will not budge an inch beyond their infamous, outrageous McCracken gerrymander, the dead-lock continues and the people are squarely robbed out of about $3000 each day under the forms of law.

It sickens the heart to see that party feeling, party interests, party bigotry and wickedness can go to this extreme extent—above and beyond all fairness, right, justice and even sworn constitutional duty. And yet it is but the logical punishment the people must suffer for electing unworthy men to high and responsible positions.

Nor do we see any present, constitutional remedy for the shameful evil, except a partial one—and that is to adjourn. If the legislature can give the people no better return for much time idled away and vast treasure spent, they can at least adjourn, and thus end disgraceful performance.

INDEPENDENT CHAIRMAN I. D. MCKEE says the independent organization will be kept up and that the fight will be made in the legislative districts next year. No wonder Cooper and the bosses are so anxious to continue the present gerrymander in force.

THE Delaware County Record, an independent journal published in Media, the home of the Boss Cooper, denounces the conduct of the republican senators in adhering to their ultimatum. In its last issue in commenting on the Amerman arbitration proposition, the Record says: "Of course there is no constitutional inhibition. The true germ of the offer is contained in an evident desire for satisfactory solution of the whole question. As things now stand a pure state of negation reigns by virtue of the senate's ultimatum. That body virtually says, you must take our McCracken bill or you can have nothing. We have shown clearly that the McCracken bill is a most shameless attempt to pass an unjust bill and inequitable measure, for purely partisan purpose, in defiance of the spirit and letter of constitutional mandate, and this position has in no way been contravened from any quarter. It is this bull head d resoluteness which is at the bottom of the present dead lock." The independent and intelligent editor of the Record understands the matter thoroughly and what is more speaks his mind with a freedom which does him infinite credit.—Patriot.

IT is said the failure of the First National Bank of Indianapolis was caused by the state treasurer of Indiana withdrawing $500,000 of the state deposits. One question the people are vitally interested in is what right has a state treasurer to allow hundreds of thousandg of dollars to accumulate in the treasury and then divide this money up among favored banking institutions out of which politicians draw large dividends? What would happen to the Alleghany National Bank if General Baily should withdraw the $800,000 of the people's money he has on deposit there, or to the Farmers' and Mechanics' bank of Philadelphia which has $822,000 of the state's money, or to the People's Bank of Philadelphia which has $423,000, or to the Uniontown Bank which has $285,000? Wolfe never made a better hit than when he said at Titusville, October 9, 1881: "The People's Bank of Philadelphia is properly called the People's Bank because the money of the people of Pennsylvania is deposited there, and the politicians grow rich off its dividends." Elect Powell state treasurer and the people's money will be invested as required by law. Elect Livsey and the politicians will continue to use it.—Patriot.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6., 1883.

BY DEININGER & BUMILLER.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

—Building Association meeting next Monday evening.

—Mrs. E. Bartholomew is absent visiting friends at Harrisburg.

—Snyder & Ulrich are busy as beavers finishing and shipping Keystone Cultivators —Fine days to work—magdiffisent nights to sleep, just now. Couldn't be made better.

—Smith's German Olio, the great remedy for rheumatism, is a purely vegetable preparation.

—Autumn made a grand start. Saturday was just as lovely a day as the most fastidious could desire.

—Our genial Quaker friend, Col. Wm. Shortlidge, showed his fine physique around our valleys last week.

—The Presbyterians of Hartleton laid the corner stone of their new church the other Tuesday, with appropriate services.

—And now you may shoot squirrels for a while, as far as the law is concerned and if you don't tresspass where you have no right.

—Our young friend Adam F. Harter left for the west yesterday afternoon. His present destination is Freeport, Ill. He has our best wishes.

—Smith's German Olio is not a liniment that gives temporary relief, but is taken internally, and drives rheumatism permanently out of the system.

—A first class, paneled two-horse wagon box for sale at a low price by the Millheim Cornet Band. Apply to tf Treasurer.

R. A. BUMILLER,

—That most excellent little fellow, Mr. Harry A. Bibighaus, salesman for the hardware house of Shields & Brother, was in town on Saturday interviewing our merchants.

—Jas. P. Coburn, Executor, will sell at public sale the valuable homestead of the late John Rupp, at Aaronsburg, on Saturday, Sept. 15th proximo. See posters. 2t

—The regular annual examinations of teachers for Millheim and Penn township will take place here next Monday. Boys, do your level best, but if you can't do that do as well as you can.

—Hoffer's Time, Wages & Expense Book is the most convenient little arangement out for men who work by the day to keep their time and wages received. For sale at the JOUNALSTORE, price 15 cents. tf —Teams have began hauling brick for the new Evangelical church. J. W. Snook has the contract for making the balance of the brick needed. Active operations on the ground are to begin in the spring.

—Landlord Musser is hereby tendered the thanks of the editors for a "mess" of the finest oysters that ever drank salt water in Chesapeake Bay. Wonder if they grow any more of the same sort down there?

—This week we give a different sett of testimonials on the Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book and next week another, and so on. We still have "lots and gobs" of them on hand and more are coming in almost daily.

—W. B. Mingle, Esq., the affable cashier of the Penn's Valley Banking Co., gave us a call on Monday morning bright and early. Such calls do our big Jumbo heart a deal of good. You may "call again," Villyum.

—Messrs. E. C. Campbell & Son have their circulars out announcing that they will sell at city cost prices for the next sixty days, in order to make room for a large fall and winter stock. Go there and buy cheap goods.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The Literary Society will give a free, public entertainment in the Town Hall, Saturday evening, Sept. 29th, next. All are invited. J. W. HERALD,
MARY E. STROHM, President.
Vice president. tf

—W. T. Meyer, of Aaronsburg, has received another lot of Estey Organs. This organ is one of the best manufactured, and Mr. Meyer, the obliging agent has no trouble in selling them. If in need of an instrument do not fail to apply to him.

—The Patrons of Husbandry of Centre county will hold their 10th Annual Reunion on top of Nittany Mountain, one mile west of Centre Hall, on Tuesday Sept. 25th, instant.

GEO. W. CAMPBELL.
Chairman Committee of Arrangements.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

—Wm. M. Moyer has built himself a new house at Frogtown, one of the suburbs of Millheim, and expects to move into it to-day. But what an ugly name for so nice a young town. We propose that you call it Elkton. Now what do you all say, ye Frogtowners?

—Our Aaronsburg friends had a delightful day for their Sunday school picnic on Saturday and right well did they improve it. The time was very pleasantly spent, and the absence of speeches and other usual formalities was as agreeable as it was novel. The Millheim Band furnished music to the amount of $6, and we venture to say it was very cheap, considering the quality.

—A grand picnic and festival by the Lutheran and Evangelical Sabbath schools, will be held in Gen. Heckman's sugar grove near Logansville, on Friday, Sep. 14. There will also be a soldier's reunion of the ex-soldiers of Clinton and Centre counties at the same time and place. Several bands and the G. A. R. Post, of Rebersburg, will be present. Further announcements will be made in next week's issue.

WANTED.—100,000 strong, able-bodied men are wanted at the JOURNAL STORE, each to buy a Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book. Price only 40 cents—and cases are easily supposable in which the little book would be worth so many dollars. It makes no real difference by what mode of conveyance the men come, whether by rail road steam boat, telegraph, telephone, private carriages, horseback or a-foot—only so they do come and are here in good season.

—The question that just now agitates the town from centre to circumference—and gives employment to our great men on Statesmen's Corner—is whether the stone piles, old buggies, wagon boxes, wind mill, engine, lumber and slabs, opposite Sheriff Musser's are placed there for a ornament or use. Both sides are so ably argued that no decision could as yet be reached. Perhaps our efficient town council could throw additional light on the subject.

—Mrs. Dr. Hassenplug, of Philadelphia, nee Miss Priscilla Kleckner, formerly of the vicinity of Millmont, Union county, in a very kind note dated the 29th ultimo, sent five dollars as a contribution to the treasury of the Ladies' Mite Society of the Lutheran congregation, which had recently elected her an honorary member. This is the largest individual donation yet received by the society, who hereby return their sincere thanks to the generous donor.

—Millheim was favored with some first class preaching during the Methodist quarterly meeting over Sunday. Rev. J. A. Mattern, of the Pleasant Gap circuit, officiated as substitute for Presiding Elder McGarrah and filled the bill admirably. Mr. Mattern is yet a young minister but gives promise of great usefulness. He possesses decided abilities, good culture, a wide range of language, a strong but musical voice, and is a close, logical reasoner. Add to these proper earnestnes and zeal and you have a fair pen picture of Mr. Mattern. Our people are in love with him, decidedly.

—Mr. L. C. Runkle, late of the Central State Normal School, Lock Haven, gave us a call on Saturday. Mr. Runkle was one of a class of fifty-six who graduated with much credit to themselves and the popular Central State, June 28th last. He is a young man of fine attainments, good culture, and what is still better has always sustained a most unexceptionable character and reputation. It affords us pleasure to add that he was recently elected Principal of the Howard Grammar School at the clever salary of $50 per month.

—This section was visited last Thursday by a most seasonable rain, a corn rain, our farmers called it. It does really seem as if our kind, heavenly Father had nothing else to do but shower blessings down upon His naughty children. Really, do we appreciate them and are we as thankful as we should be? Do we give the Lord His share, do we remember the poor and needy around us, do we grow in works of charity and deeds of mercy, or do we live only for this world and exclusively for ourselves? These are questions that deserve our most serious consideration. Read Malachi 3; 8 to 12 inclusive.

GRAND HARVEST HOME PICNIC.—The George's Valley Union Sunday School will hold its annual basket picnic in Harter's grove, at the George's valley Church, Saturday, September 15th, next. All the neighboring Sunday Schools are cordially invited to attend.

Rev. J. K. Miller, Rev. Benj. Hengst, and others, have consented to be present and address the meeting.

Mrs. Rev. A. D. Rowe, late Missionary in India, has also been invited and is expected present to deliver a lecture especially the children on "Life in India."

The Millheim Cornet Band has been engaged for the occasion.

No huckstering will be allowed on or near the grounds.

The public in general is invited to attend. Committee.

—J. A. LIMBERT will carry express and freight goods from Coburn to any point along the route at the following rates: All packages weighing less than 100 pounds, to Millheim, 10 cts., to Aaronsburg, 15 cts., to Woodward, 25 cts. For packages weighing over 100 pounds a proportionate charge will be made. tf

—In a notice on the Spring Mills Union Sunday School, an institution which has been in successful operation for fifty four consecutive years, the Bellefonte Republican says: "There are teachers now in the school who have been connected with it for a very long time. One lady, especially, says that she can enumerate at least fifty men who when boys were taught by her in this Sabbath school, and not one of them has ever done anything that will disgrace his name, so far as the world is aware, but all have become useful and many even prominent citizens."

That lady, we venture to guess is Mrs. Woods. And what a grand noble work she did. What a glorious reward awaits such a life in the better land!

A VENERABLE MAN.—Mr. John Harter, of Millheim, one of our few remaining venerable fathers, is probable the oldest man in this end of the county, excepting perhaps Mr. Samuel Wolfe, at Penns Creek, who may be Mr. Harter's senior by several years. Mr. Harter was born in Lebanon township, Dauphin Co. Pa., Nov. 16, 1792, and is consequently at this writing 90 years, 10 months and 20 days of age. He learned the trade of wagon-maker, with Mr. Philip Grove, in Bellefonte, and came to Millheim fifty-seven years ago. He carried on his business here for twenty-six successive years, and retired just thirty-one years ago. Mr. Harter was the father of nine children—three of whom have preceded him into eternity, and among these was the late widely known and highly respected Dr. Wm. S. Harter. In April 1878 Mr. Harter had a fall on the side walk and had the misfortune to break his left limb. No one then thought that he could long survive the accident, but he still lives, although confined to bed ever since. He is yet in possession of his mental faculties and in good health, barring the debilities of extreme old age.

Around Farmer's Mills.

Mr. David Lohr brought some oats to the mill that weighed 40 pounds to the bushel. Dave is one of our boss farmers.

Our band meets in Cyrus Lose's shop every Monday evening.

Mr. Samuel Long is kept busy piloting visitors in and out of Penn Cave. The register counted 225 during the last ten days. Sam, why don't you build a hotel and lay out a park at your cave? "There's millions in it."

Mr. Phil. J. Auman, a brother to our excellent miller, from Tamaqua, Pa., where he has resided for the last sixteen years, was here on a visit. Philip is a first class teacher.

M. L. Rishel, Esq., and sister Katie have just returned from the Williams' Grove State Granger picnic.

Mr. Smith, the stage man, has all the passengers, bundles and parcels he cares to carry.

Miss Sallie Alter, from Lock Haven, is here visiting friends.

SCHOOL BOY.

[We regret that our school boy's items came too late for last week's JOURNAL. They are too good to be lost and so we insert them this week.]

—The Reformed congregation of Aaronsburg and the members of the Presbyterian church, in the same place, are taking steps towards the building of a new church. Mr. Michael Harper has donated his valuable property on Main Street to the Reformed congregation for this purpose. This is a generous gift on his part. He formerly valued the property at $2000. It consists of two adjacent lots, on the one of which are all the improvements necessary to a dwelling place, and on the other, which is vacant, the new church is to be erected. The present parsonage which is a pleasant, comfortable residence in good repair, is to be sold and the proceeds added to the building fund. Mr. Harper's house is then to be used as a parsonage. In addition to this donation the subscriptions, on the part of the Reformed congregation, at the present time, amount to $2150. The canvass on the part of the Presbyterians has also been commenced. We are not informed as to the amount subscribed, but are assured that they are meeting with commendable success.

If the funds secured will justify the undertaking, it is proposed to build of brick. The material of the old church will be used in the new as far as it can be made available. The plan which meets with most favor is to build one story with an addition to the rear for Sunday School and lecture purposes. It is proposed to make all the necessary preparations this fall and, as far as possible, haul the material during the winter and build the church next Summer. It is believed that Aaronsburg will be improved by the addition of another good church by the end of next fifteen months, and Mr. Harper has the credit of initiating the movement in a liberal, taugible way. May the Divine blessing attend it!

THE new postal notes will be a great convenience to newspaper subscribers. Upon payment of three cents they can forward money to the publishers in sums less than $5 without inconvenience. The notes will come into use on the first day of October next.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, PENN'A STATE CONVENTION.—The State Executive Committee, James McCormick, Harrisburg, Chairman, has called the State Convention to meet at York, beginning on Thursday, September 20th, at 3½ P. M., and continuing over 28rd. The progress of the work during the past year, indicates a large and interesting gathering. York is on the Northern Central Railway, and easy of access from all parts of the State, being 30 miles from Harrisburg, and 90 from Philadelphia. Excursion Rates have been secured from all the leading Railroads. Entertainment will be provided for all delegates. Persons desiring to represent towns that have no Associations, can secure the same by addressing W. A. Bowen, Assistant State Secretary, at York. An interesting programme of exercises has been prepared. Rev. Dr. Julius Grammar, of Baltimore, will speak on the first evening.

Further information can be obtained from the State Secretary, S. A. TAGGART, Pittsburgh. tc

The Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book, with Summary Index Arranged for Ten Years. By a Country Editor.

THE READY REFERENCE TAX RECEIPT BOOK will commend itself to practical business men at sight. Its forms are so concise and plain that all may readily understand and use them. The Summary Index will show at a glance the increase or decrease of assessed valuation and taxes from year to year for a period of ten years.

Every taxable citizen, and especially every voter, should make it a rule to take receipts for all taxes paid. This is not only prudent on business principles, but actually necessary in order to enjoy the continued right to vote. It is also a matter of no small consideration to have all tax receipts for a series of years together in convenient form for reference and comparison. tf

TESTIMONIALS.

Aaronsburg Pa., Aug. 10th. 1883.
I have examined the Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book and think it should find its way into the hands of every voter. Its plain and concise forms commend it at sight to every taxable citizen.
JAMES P. COBURN.

Lewisburg, Pa., Aug, 11th 1883.
I have examined your tax receipt book and think it well adapted for the purpose intended. Every taxpayer should have one and I will do all I can to introduce it here and push it for you.
T. G. EVANS.

Millheim, Aug. 21, 1883.
I have examined your Reference Tax Receipt Book and endorse the idea, also plan of work, and recognize the collateral beneficial feature in that it serves to train men to do their business in "bang up" style.
A. WALTER, Cashier.

Reading, Pa., Aug. 21. 1883.
The idea of the book is good, excellent, obviating the danger of losing receipts and keeping them in compact form. Hope you may make a good thing of it. Thanks for sending me a copy. Yours,
JNO. F. W. DEININGER.

Bellefonte, Pa., Aug. 30. 1883.
B. O. Deininger, Esq.,
Dear Sir—The Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book with your compliments, received. Please accept my thanks for the same.
I have already made use of the book and shall continue to use it. I think it should be in the hands of every business man.

The Leopard's Favorite Morsels.

The poets, as Broome and Somerville, seem to think the leopard looks on the dog as its natural master and conqueror, whereas the fact is that the leopard looks upon the dog as its natural food. The leopard's taste for dogs is certainly one of the most extraordinary phenomena in natural history. We say that cats like fish and that monkeys are fond of nuts, but these are mere passing whims, caprices of the moment, compared to the constant passion of leopards for dogs. It is a very Chinaman for its delight in puppy, for it will follow a man for miles like his shadow if a dog be at his heels—and it will be a very extraordinary dog indeed, if it does not at last give the leopard its chance. The best of dogs sometimes commits the indiscretion of loitering behind his master, or running out of sight round a corner in front of him, and if he does this with a leopard on his track, nothing more is ever seen of the dog, and nothing more heard of him but his last squeal as he is swiftly snatched up from the path and carried with a sudden rustle of foliage, down the hillside. At night leopards will prowl around the tent, snifling under the canvas for the dog that they can smell within; or in the hill stations, will boldly come down among the houses and carry off the pet of the establishment, though servants may be moving about. It is on record, that in the station of Gumsoor not a single dog escaped! and nearly every resident of India, who has ever camped out in the jungle where leopards are, or has lived in "the hills," has had some tragic experience of this mania of the leopard for dogs.

In about the same degree, but obviously for very different reasons, the monkey takes the most profound interest in the leopard, and when one is afoot the four-handed folk follow him as closely as they dare, shaking the branches in their absurd rage, chattering furiously at their enemy, and making faces at him. Sometimes, however, the leopard stops abruptly and glares at them, and the wretched monkeys gathering overhead. get so excitted in their demonstrations, that very often one of their number is pretty sure to lose its balance and tumble conveniently intothe leopard's mouth.

A tradition was once widely current that the panther was sweetly scented—says Dryden, "the panther's breath was ever famed for sweet"—and that this fragrance was so fascinating to some small animals that it enticed them to their death in the jaws of the aromatic beast. It is a fact, however, that the panther itself is peculiarly sensible to perfumes, and among other instances is one of undeniable authenticity of a panther being tamed with lavender water.

Esthetic Cremation.

The new crematory in the Campo Verano at Rome was used for the first time a few days ago and the corpse of Signor Cipriani, an Italian senator was reduced to ashes in two hours and a half. The three other existing crematories of importance are at Gotha, Milan and Washington, Pa., respectively. In some of them gas is used as fuel, but in Rome the body, enveloped in a specially made shroud, rests on an iron frame above a fire of wood and coal; and it is believed that no other method of cremation is so simple and at the same time so cheap and unobjectionable. The new crematory is a handsome building in the Egyptian style, and consists of three chambers two of which are above the ground In one of these latter the actual incineration takes place, and in the other is kept a register for the preservation of full particulars of every corpse that is burned. Beneath these rooms is a spacious vault, in which on shelves are ranged ornamental urns of porcelain, bronze and silver, to contain the ashes of the dead. The establishment is, in short, so well found and luxuriously appointed that it almost seems that we might be entering upon an era in which æsthetic cremation shall be as fashionable as æsthetic dress and furniture have been during the last decade.

Chicory Farming.

Chicory farming promises to be one of the coming industries of California farming. Chicory was first planted in that state about fifteen years ago, but since that time it has been extensively raised on the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers. Chicory is cultivated on a small scale in some of the eastern states, and in some places in that section grows wild in abandoned fields and orchards. It grows very thrifty on the bottom lands of Louisiana and Texas. The root of the plant, when being prepared for use, is cut by a machine into small square blocks, then placed in the sun to dry, afterwards roasted, and finally ground in a mill. Chicory possesses few elements in common with coffee; and yet it imparts a taste to it greatly fancied by certain coffee drinkers in Europe. In France and Belgium, the common people have been so accustomed to chicory with the coffee they drink that they prefer it so prepared, to the beverage in its pure state. Travellers in those countries, even when they purchase pure coffee for their private consumption, find that the cooks will mix chicory with it, even after having received strict orders to the contrary.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

It is a curious coincidence that if the cholera should break out in this country this year it will be the third time it has done so at intervals of seventeen years. In 1832 it raged violently here, so it did in 1849, and again, but more mildly, in 1866.

A physician said that leprosy was a comparatively common disease among the Norwegian settlers of northwestern Wisconsin, and the statement was widely copied. The Milwaukee Sentinel has been unable to find a case in the state after a protracted search.

Is the poor bachelor to be driven from the face of the earth? In Manitoba he is subjected to an extra tax, and in France such military discriminations are to be made against him as to threaten to destroy him and his liberty-loving tribe amid the hardships and carnage of horrid war.

This is the iron age. The value of all the gold and silver mined in the United States in the year 1882 was not equal to that of iron. The amount of silver (coining value) mined was $46,800,000; of gold, $32,500,000; of pig iron manufactured, $106,366,429. The value of coal mined during the year was $146,632,581.

It is seriously proposed that several of the European powers should unite in the suppression of Mohammedan pilgrimages to Mecca by the occupation of the Holy City, which is so charged with pestilence almost always, and which sends so frequently the scourge of cholera over Egypt and the East. The remedy suggested is a daring one. It might cause a terrible war. But something has to be done very soon.

A man who has kept an account of the weather, claims that it invariably repeats itself, and gives the following as the result of his observations: All years ending in 9, 0 or 1, are extremely dry. Those ending in 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6, are extremely wet. Those ending in 7 or 8, are ordinarily well balanced. Those ending in 6 have extremely cold winters. Those ending in 2 have an early spring. Those ending in 3 or 4 are subject to great floods.

The intensity of the struggle for a livelihood in England is illustrated by the statement of a magazine writer that there are 300,000 families in London who are in the habit of pawning small articles and that more than 6,000,000 unclaimed pledges are sold every year in that city, while over 270,000,000 are taken in pledge in the course of the year throughout the country. Of course, some of these pledges are of stolen goods, but the writer estimates that they do not exceed more than one in 14,000.

Eight million acres of government land was taken up by settlers in Dakota last year, according to the report of the land commissioner at Washington. As no person can take more than three hundred and twenty acres (a pre-emption or homestead and a timber claim), this means that not less than twenty-five thousand, and probably thirty-five thousand farmers located in Dakota, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1883, upon government lands alone, without taking into calculation the millions of acres sold from the railroad land grants.

In Mexico nearly every one is a smoker. The school children who have done well in their studies are rewarded by being allowed to smoke a cigar as they stand or sit at their lessons. The schoolmaster is seldom without a cigar in his mouth. In the law courts all persons commonly enjoy their tobacco freely, and even the accused in a criminal trial is not denied this indulgence, but is allowed, if his cigarette goes out in the heat of the argument, to light it again by borrowing that of the officer who stands at his side to guard him.

Insects in Bricks.

Having occasion in San Francisco to examine a brick that was taken from an old ruined and forsaken building which was being torn down to make room for a handsome business block, a reporter was somewhat startled upon adjusting a microscope to see each pore of the brick inhabited with a peculiar rod-like animalculæ of the genus bacilli. As these insects cannot be seen other than by the microscope, even when they live in the human system and prey upon our vitality, neither are they visible in the soil or substance in which they may live and hive, except by a powerful glass. Their motions when exposed to blows were as the link of a chain, reminding one of a system of joints to be extended and contracted. They were semi-transparent, with a slight, scintillating column nearly two-thirds their length, extending from nearly their head to their pointed tails, probably their spinal column. As this brick was from the foundation and being underground and next to the street sidewalk, it illustrates forcibly the fact that however hard burnt and well made, porous substances should not be put underground for foundations or sewers. Solid rock, or concrete, or terra cottta are the only proper building materials below the level of the sidewalks.

The treaty of commerce with Spain passed its second reading in the German Reichstag yesterday by a large majority. Indemnity to the government for carrying the provisions of the treaty into immediate effect was granted, although the Progressists and Accessionists, and a portion of the National Liberals, voted against it.

In the Frank James trial at Gallatin, Mo., the defense introduced several more witnesses to sustain their theory of an alibi. Gen. Joe Shelby apologized to the court for his conduct on the day previous. The court fined him $10 and rebuked him for having appeared in an unfit condition, for threatening the attorneys of the State, and drawing his pistol on the verge of the court. General Shelby denied that he had drawn his pistol, and said the marshal who had sworn to it had lied.

The Texas cattle fever has broken out in Detroit in the herd of a milkman in the western part of the city. The whole herd is infected, and several have already died. A herd of forty-one steers bought by a Genessee county farmer for feeding some two weeks ago, have also been attacked by the disease, and five have died.

The annual review of the Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier shows a business of $75,000,000 during the past year. Local manufacturers employed 6,500 persons, the value of their products being over $9,250,000. The export of phosphate were 359,060 tons, the largest known. The products of the cotton mills in the State reached $6,000,000.

Two assisted pauper Irish immigrants were sent back to Canada from Buffalo. They stated that eleven hundred others came over in the same ship, and that all their expenses were paid by the British Government. The plan is stated to be to ship them to Canada, and from there to the States across the border at different points. A large number have been sent back from Buffalo previously.

Sixteen Volcanoes in Sundia Strait.

New Islands Thrown Up, and the Line of the Coast Altered—Part of Bantam an Ashy Desert---Ice in the Molten Lava.

LONDON, Aug. 30.---A dispatch to Lloyds from Betavia says the condition of the Strait of Sunda is dangerous to navigation. New island have arisen therein and the coast line is altered. The government is preparing to obtain new soundings of the strait. Sixteen volcanoes have appeared between the site where the Island of Krakatoa formerly stood and Sibisie Island. A portion of Bantam is an ashy desert. The cattle are starving, and the population are in despair. The Soengepan volcanoo has split in five portions. Seven hundred and four bodies of victims of the disaster have been buried in the district of Tanara and 309 bodies in the coast village of Kramat. The estimate of loss of life amounts to 275,000. The eruptions continue from hour to hour, and the whole adjacent country along the coast of Java is a vast plain of lava and ashes.

The returns to the General Land Office show that the public lands are being every year more rapidly disposed of. During the fiscal year just closed, nineteen million, thirty-five thousand, six hundred and eighty-three acres were taken up an increase of more than 5,000,000 acres over the total for the previous year.

Acting Secretary French has caused an investigation to be made by United States Treasurer Wyman, and by Mr. Knox, comptroller of the currency, as to certain notes found upon the floor and among the waste papers of the department. The occurrence is shown to have been the result of carelessness on the part of several clerks, who are exonerated on account of their general fidelity. Two of them were performing duties at the time to which they were unaccustomed, and their inexperience, the Secretary believes, was partly accountable for the occurrence. With regard to the $10,000 in canceled notes found in the canceling room, Treasurer Wyman gives a detailed explanation of how the loss probably occurred, and while admitting the carelessness of the employes concerned, speaks highly of their character and general conduct.

An Interesting Wager.

The saloons of most ferry boats are abundantly furnished with mirrors. A mischievous lady once remarked to a gentleman accompanying her that she would wager a pair of kid gloves that every man who passed through the cabin would glance into the mirror, while the women would not. The gentleman, with an incredulous smile, accepted the wager at once, and each person was noted, and true enough, as each young, middle-aged and old man came forward toward the mirror he glanced in, many with a self-satisfied gaze, because of their good looks, jaunty clothes or fine physiques, while others seemed to wear a contemptuous curl of the lip, as if angry at themselves; but not a single woman, young, middle-aged or old, homely or pretty, good, bad or indifferent, glanced into the mirror. After at least three hundred persons had passed through, the gentleman, in a half dazed way, remarked to his companion: "You have won the gloves, but I never would have believed it. I wonder why it is."

Little Things.

One little indiscretion in eating is often the end of a valuable life. The magical cures made by Dr. Worthington's renowned Cholera and Diarrhoea Medicine, have given it such fame as an infallible remedy for all complaints of the stomach and bowels, that the best physicians have adopted it. Sold by druggists and dealers at 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

A Woman's Threat.

A very handsome senorita went to one of the best photographers in Madrid lately to have her picture taken. When the posture was all settled, and the cloth was about to be drawn, the artist threw a last glance at his subject, and to his consternation found that she was holding a pistol to her head.

"What are you doing?" he cried. "You will not shoot yourself: it would ruin my business; besides it would be wicked to mar so lovely a face as yours, senorita."

"Do not be afraid," she replied; "I have no intention of spoiling the original of one of your best pictures; but my love has left me, and I'm going to send him my photograph in this posture, with the message that I'll fire if he does not return to me at once."

A few weeks after the photographer had the pleasure of taking the portraits of a young married pair—without the pistol.

No Rest Day or Night.

In the fall of 1875 my sufferings were terrible. I was swollen to such proportions that I feared my limbs would burst. I had the best medical talent obtainable, and at the worst stage of my illness, when my husband and many friends had given me up to die, the late Dr. John Woodbury made a thorough examination of my water, and pronounced my case acute kidney disease, bordering on Bright's disease, and accompanied by gravel, and recommended the immediate use of Hunt's Remedy. At this time I was suffering most terrible pain in my back, limbs and head, and could find no rest day or night for weeks, and I was growing weaker daily until this kind physician ordered me to take Hunt's Remedy. Before taking half of one bottle I commenced to improve, and after taking six bottles was entirely cured. This was nearly eight years ago, and I have had no return of the disease. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to others in similar cases, and it has never failed to cure. I have also used it for sick headache, and found in it a sure relief. I think it the best medicine made, and cheerfully recommend it to all.

Another Life Saved:

J. C. Gray, of Dadeville, Ala., writes us: "I have been using your Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, and I can say, of a truth, it is far superior to any other Lung preparation in the world. My mother was confined to her bed four weeks with a cough, and had every attention by as good physicians as there are in the country, and they all failed to effect a cure; but when I got one bottle of your Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, she began to mend right away. I can say in truth, that it was the means of saving her life. I know of five cases that Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam has cured, and my mother is better now than she has been before for twenty years."

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.
[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.
